

Technical ProSource provided consulting services to the Houston Oracle office to help in the development of a Houston Oracle consulting contract. The consultant proved to be a significant contributor to the project. His technical expertise and communication skills allowed him to help define the standards for the project's on-line forms as well as conduct several technical training sessions. In addition, he led the way in identifying system-wide problems and formulating a quality assurance testing program.

The work performed was excellent and shows Technical ProSource's commitment to providing talented people to meet their client's needs. If the need for qualified consultants should arise again, I would not hesitate in calling Technical ProSource.

Sincerely,
